We verily believe the original '097 patent to be wholly or partially inoperative by reason of the patentee claiming less than they had the right to claim in the patent.

At least one error in the '097 patent is that the '097 patent did not include any claims drawn to a format conversion unit without necessarily including an accompanying video recording device. The claim below being added in this reissue application is drawn to a format conversion without necessarily including an accompanying video recording device:

Claim 22. A format conversion unit for converting video signals comprising:

switching unit receiving a baseband video signal;

a control unit controlling the switching unit;

a scanning format converter receiving the baseband video signal from the switching unit when the baseband video signal includes a non-interlaced video signal and outputting an interlaced video signal, the switching unit by-passing the scanning format converter when baseband video signal includes an interlaced video signal; and a format region converter coupled to the switching unit and the scanning format converter and outputting a standard definition video signal, format region converter converting a display size of the video signal when the baseband video signal includes the interlaced video signal.
